DEAN’S MESSAGE  FLOURISHING

After enduring a brutally cold and snowy winter in Central New York, the spring season is arriving, and much of the work the Libraries’ staff and I started earlier this academic year is beginning to flower.

When I wrote you last, the Libraries and University were in the midst of significant change, with the University’s Board of Trustees having named Kent D. Syverud to succeed Nancy Cantor as president and chancellor. I was but months into my tenure as the Libraries’ chief executive officer, and the Libraries were conducting final preparations to return the Carnegie Library Reading Room to its original purpose of silent, individual study. On January 13, I had the honor of presiding over a commemorative ribbon-cutting ceremony, and greeting School of Education doctoral student David J. Wolken, the first student to use the renovated space that chilly Monday morning. On March 17, Chancellor Syverud and I rededicated the Reading Room with a more formal ceremony and reception.

In March, the Libraries Advisory Board held its semiannual meeting, which was convened by chair Eric Sherman (’91). I first met Eric last spring during a Board meeting and since have come to value his wit, counsel, contributions, and generosity. Dr. Judy Mower (’66, G’73, G’80, G’84), a longtime Libraries supporter as a University Trustee and also an Advisory Board member since 2007, will succeed Eric as chair. We look forward to working with Judy, Eric (who continues on the Board), and the other Advisory Board members on a number of important future initiatives. On behalf of Libraries’ supporters everywhere, I graciously thank Eric and Judy for their continued leadership and support of the SU Libraries.

Finally, I commend librarians Linda Galloway, Janet Pease, and Anne Rauh for their article “Introduction to Altmetrics for Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Librarians.” Their article was the most widely read in 2013 in the peer-reviewed scholarly journal Science & Technology Libraries. The London-based journal, which is the oldest and most cited in its field, reaches hundreds of universities and research centers in more than 50 countries.

In a February blog post that commented on this winter’s snow, Chancellor Syverud wrote “In Syracuse, we can handle anything you throw at us.” This sentiment applies in great part to the Libraries and its staff, many of whom go beyond what is necessary on behalf of the University’s students and faculty.

I look forward to spring and continuing to benefit from the bloom. «

The Carnegie Library has undergone renovation to restore and revitalize its grand reading room. The refurbished Carnegie Library Reading Room and adjacent Libraries’ service point on the second floor reopened with a ribbon-cutting ceremony on Monday, January 13, followed by a formal dedication on March 17. The main entrance to the Carnegie Library—through the front stairs and doors—reopened for the first time since the mid-1970s.

The 144-seat reading room provides study space, wireless service, and power for laptops and other devices at every table. The entire reading room, including the lounge area at the north end, has been designated for silent study—a return to its original purpose—in response to faculty and student requests.

In addition to an atmosphere conducive to studying, each newly refinished table has multiple power outlets and custom lighting. For other technology needs, room 208 has been outfitted as a computer cluster with high-speed printer. A new library service desk adjacent to the reading room provides assistance with library-related tasks.

The project has been managed by the Syracuse University Libraries and the University’s Office of Campus Planning, Design, and Construction. «

LIBRARIES CONSULT ON FACILITY, TECHNOLOGY INTEGRATION

Just one year after the opening of the Facility on South Campus, Syracuse University Libraries has gained recognition as a leader in high-density storage and has begun consulting with other institutions interested in replicating its innovative design. Recently, the Libraries hosted visits from Cornell University Library and the University of Rochester Libraries, and held a virtual meeting with individuals from the Hesburgh Libraries at the University of Notre Dame.

Syracuse University Libraries was the first to bridge the Facility’s inventory system with the library catalog to facilitate online delivery of articles via ILLiad, same-day delivery of print materials, streamlined uptake into the inventory system, and integration with the existing faculty delivery service.

Staff from the Libraries’ Access & Resource Sharing and Information & Technology Services departments conducted in-depth on-site sessions for Cornell and University of Rochester visitors, covering all aspects of the Facility’s architectural and technical design. The exchanges included a tour of the Facility, overview of workflows and daily operations, and discussion of customizations to the public interfaces that easily guide patrons to the proper request forms.

Although Cornell has had a high-density storage facility for several years, they were seeking details on how SUL has integrated library and warehouse systems to streamline the request process. The Facility’s tube storage system for architectural drawings was also of interest to Cornell as they hold similar materials. In addition to replicating technical innovations, Rochester visitors were interested in details related to staffing, training, the design of processing spaces, and procedures.

The SUL team had a virtual meeting with a group of librarians and staff from Notre Dame in February as they embark on building their own high density storage facility. The Notre Dame group was seeking details on the innovative architectural design of the Facility itself, as well as high-level workflow and staffing decisions.

SU Libraries consulted with a number of other institutions in developing its facility and welcomes these opportunities to share its expertise and lessons learned with others. This transition is another sign of the Facility’s success.

For background on the Facility, see the introductory video produced by Keith Kobland of SU News Services at http://goo.gl/6LMJ79.

» Zhongguo hui hua quan ji (30 volumes). «
NEWS SUL FEATURED ON LIST OF VITAL UNIVERSITY LIBRARY WEBSITES

The SU Libraries’ website has received international recognition for the outstanding service it provides to students, researchers, and the public.

The site is among those listed in a new compilation of the best university library websites from around the world, published by the Online PhD Program. The Libraries’ website is commended for having an impressive display of content on its front page that highlights notable lecturers, the latest news relating to libraries, recommended databases, in addition to fantastic databases and collections.

Entitled “Reading & Research: 101 Vital University Library Websites,” the list features sites that not only provide students with online access to vast digital collections, but also ensure that many of their resources are accessible to the public.

The list, which is not in order of rank, can be viewed on the Online PhD Program website, http://onlinephdprogram.org/university-libraries.

AWARDS SU LIBRARIANS AUTHOR MOST DOWNLOADED ARTICLE OF 2013 IN SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY LIBRARIES

The article “Introduction to Altmetrics for Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Librarians” by SU librarians Linda Galloway, Janet Pease, and Anne Rauh, was the most widely-read article in Science & Technology Libraries for 2013, according to a report from Tony Stankus, Editor-in-Chief of the London-based journal. Subscribers to the journal, which is the oldest and most cited in its field, number several hundred science librarians from hundreds of universities and research centers based in over 50 countries.

Stankus commended Syracuse University Libraries, saying, “Syracuse means to attract and retain the kind of talent that generates new knowledge for the professions, and it clearly did so here.”

According to the authors, altmetrics are the tools that help track a scholar’s influence and relevance beyond traditional article citation metrics. Altmetrics can take the form of article views, downloads, or saves, tweets and other social media mentions, analysis and review, or other indicators. They provide immediate feedback because they rely on real-time data and interactions and can be quantified quickly. The importance of employing new measures is evident as scholars begin to communicate more frequently and meaningfully via social media outlets.

For more information on applying altmetrics, contact one of the authors—galloway@syr.edu, jlpease@syr.edu, or aerah@syr.edu—or any subject specialist librarian.

NEWS SU PRESS

REVIEW
The Irish Times reviewed the Syracuse University Press title “Other People’s Diasporas”: Negotiating Race in Contemporary Irish and Irish-American Culture by Sinéad Moynihan.

“One of the most impressive aspects of Moynihan’s overall approach is her repeated warning against recasting Irish experience in terms of American debates of race and immigration….her own close readings of Irish texts are similarly enhanced by an attentiveness to the small print of race and immigration in contemporary Ireland.”

ONLINE ON Campus
The Libraries offer a selection of recent SU Press titles online at http://library.syr.edu/splash/supress. The digital collection is a collaboration between the Press and the Libraries and allows SU faculty and students to make ready use of SU Press’s award-winning content for class readings and research. The project also seeks to raise general campus awareness of the work of the Press and its ebook initiatives. «
SPECIAL COLLECTIONS ARCHIVE OF IRISH WRITER PADRAIC COLUM ACQUIRED

The Special Collections Research Center at Syracuse University Libraries has acquired the estate archive of Padraic Colum, a well-known Irish writer and a leading figure in the Irish Literary Renaissance.

Born in County Longford in 1881, the oldest of eight children, Colum attended University College Dublin. He joined the Irish Republican Army, gaelicized his name, and began writing poetry and plays. His award-winning one-act play The Saxon Shillin’ attracted the attention of William Butler Yeats, who invited him to join the newly established Abbey Theatre. By 1905, Colum had become a central figure in the burgeoning Irish Literary Renaissance—a movement that included Lady Gregory, Æ, and James Joyce.

After a falling out with Yeats, described by one biographer as “one of the great mistakes of his life,” Colum moved to the United States with his wife, Mary Gunning Maguire (Mollie). There, he shifted his attention from Ireland’s turbulent present to its mythical past. Children’s books, such as The King of Ireland’s Son (1916), earned him critical acclaim and financial security. Later in his life, he renewed his friendship with Joyce and co-wrote Our Friend James Joyce (1957) with Mollie. In the sixties, following Mollie’s death, Colum returned to drama, penning a series of Noh (a form of Japanese musical drama) that sought to connect Ireland’s past and present. He died in 1972 in Enfield, Connecticut.

The Padraic and Mary Colum estate archive was donated by Eric D. Sherman ’91, partner in the Pryor Cashman LLP law firm, chair of the SU Libraries Advisory Board, and a collector of rare books. According to Sherman, the Colum archive represents “an important opportunity for students and scholars to have access to one of the three major American holdings of these two literary figures who played unique roles throughout the 20th-century evolution of Ireland’s culture and history.”

The collection totals five linear feet and includes manuscript notebooks, handwritten and typed manuscript drafts, and correspondence to and from the Colums, including letters from Jack Yeats, W. Somerset Maugham, Van Wyck Brooks, Edmund Wilson, Thornton Wilder, and others. The collection includes books by the Colums, as well as from friends and scholars, inscribed to the Colums.

Syracuse University Press publishes a respected series in Irish Studies, which continued on page 7 » discourse on the archive formulated by Walter Benjamin, Jorge Luis Borges, Jacques Derrida, and Michel Foucault, this exhibition highlights the unique character of the collections at Syracuse University.

From Albert Einstein’s original handwritten research paper “On Rotationally Symmetric Stationary Gravitational Fields,” through stunning photographs of ballet dancers Paul Draper and George Skibine, to pochoir prints hand-painted by Native Americans, this exhibition not only attends to the representation of movement found in the collections, but it suggests that the archive itself is always in motion.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS ARCHIVE OF IRISH WRITER PADRAIC COLUM ACQUIRED

includes Selected Short Stories of Padraic Colum (1985), Selected Plays of Padraic Colum (1986), and Selected Poems of Padraic Colum (1989), all edited by English Professor Emeritus Sanford Sternlicht. Asked to comment on the acquisition, Sternlicht said, “As a Colum scholar, I am delighted that Syracuse University Libraries have obtained the Colum archive. I eagerly await the opportunity to investigate it and perhaps continue to write about this great Irish literary figure.”

The Padraic Colum archive will be open to researchers later this year, after it has been processed. For more information, please contact Senior Director of Special Collections Sean M. Quimby at smquimby@syr.edu. «
SU Libraries serves as host for THATCamp Central New York (CNY) on April 11–12 in Bird Library. A THATCamp, “The Humanities and Technology Camp,” is a user-generated, unconference-style meeting for humanists and technologists of all skill levels. A highly informal conference, the program is created by all participants on the first day, rather than in advance by a program committee. The emphasis is on productive, collegial work or free-form discussion; there are no lengthy proposals, papers, presentations, or product demos.

THATCamp CNY welcomes graduate students, faculty, scholars, librarians, archivists, museum professionals, developers and programmers, teachers, community members, and others. For more information, see THATCamp CNY’s website, http://cny2014.thatcamp.org.

AWARDS

STEPHANIE McREYNOLDS has received the SLA St. Louis Metro Area Chapter Leadership Award, which recognizes a member whose ability to lead and inspire others has furthered the chapter’s goals and objectives.

The exhibition catalog, Margaret Bourke-White: Moments in History, featuring text by SEAN QUIMBY, senior director of special collections, was selected as one of American Photo magazine’s best books of 2013. It was published by La Fabrica (Madrid).

SCOTT WARREN has joined the Institute of Physics (IOP) Library Advisory Board. IOP is an international society and publisher headquartered in Britain.

PRESENTATIONS

Learning Commons Librarian TARIDA ANANTACHAI was a guest blogger on the Association of College and Research Libraries University Libraries Section (ACRL-ULS) blog. She wrote about her experience as last year’s ULS-sponsored Emerging Leader. Read the post, “An ACRL-ULS Emerging Leader Looks Back,” at www.acrl.ala.org/ULS.

MARIANNE HANLEY, collections maintenance and management librarian, presented the poster “Does Your Institution Have a Disaster Plan Currently in Effect?” at the Upstate New York Special Libraries Association fall conference in November.

LUCY MULRONEY, curator in the Special Collections Research Center, gave a paper at the College Art Association Conference in February entitled “Going Public: Artists’ Publications before the Digital Age.” She also presented her paper “Archiving Dissent” about last year’s Ray Smith Symposium, “Positions of Dissent” as part of a panel on “Public Histories of Dissent” at the American Studies Association conference in November.

PUBLICATIONS

LINDA GALLOWAY and ANNE RAUH co-authored a chapter “Embedding Librarians into the STEM Publication Process” in How to STEM: Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math Education in Libraries.

LUCY MULRONEY’s essay about the making of Andy Warhol’s philosophy book THE appears in Reading Andy Warhol, the catalogue of the first major exhibition on the publications of Andy Warhol, published by the Museum Brandhorst (Munich) and Hatje Cantz. The Special Collections Research Center owns a signed copy of THE, donated by William Gaske in 2011.

STAFF NEWS RETIREMENT
MARK WEIMER retired from the Syracuse University Libraries on February 15 after 37 years of service. After receiving an MA in history from the University of St Andrews in Scotland, and an MLS from Case Western Reserve University in Ohio, Mark worked as a rare book librarian and cataloger at the Washington University School of Medicine library in St. Louis. He joined SU Libraries in 1977 as Rare Book Bibliographer, was promoted to the rank of Librarian in 1983, and became head of Special Collections in 1990. Since 2001, he served as Director of Belfer Audio Archive, Principal Bibliographer, and as Arts and Humanities Bibliographer.

For many years, Mark taught a special collections librarianship course at the School of Information Studies, as well as courses on the Oneida Community for University College. He served as a trustee of Oneida Community Mansion House and Onondaga Historical Association, was secretary of SU Library Associates, and a member of the Grolier Club, sponsored by Chancellor Emeritus William P. Tolley. He was awarded the Post-Standard Award for Distinguished Service to the SU Library in 1996.

EVENTS NATIONAL DIGITAL ARCHIVING WORKSHOP
SU Libraries partnered with the Association of Research Libraries and the Society of American Archivists, to offer a series of Digital Archives Specialist (DAS) courses at SU in March. Hosted by the Libraries’ Special Collections Research Center, the DAS courses drew participants from all over Central and Upstate New York.

According to Senior Director of Special Collections Sean Quimby, “Archivists are charged with collecting and preserving today’s knowledge for the benefit of tomorrow’s scholars. Doing that requires the application of time-tested archival principles to rapidly changing information technologies.” He adds that “these courses will help equip archivists at SU and in the region with the necessary skills.”

The courses presented best practices for appraising, capturing, preserving, and providing access to electronic records and other born-digital content. The program was a weeklong immersion in four core courses of the DAS program:
» Digital Archives and Libraries
» Digital Curation: Creating an Environment for Success
» Preserving Digital Archives
» Digital Forensics

For more information on the DAS program, see www2.archivists.org/prof-education/das.

GIVING DONOR SPOTLIGHT

MRS. HELEN C. BELL ’29*

Early in her life, Helen Bell fell in love with rare books, building a collection of items especially rare to her own heart. To memorialize her passion and ensure that her love of rare books would live on, Helen created an estate gift to the SU Libraries. The Libraries are honored to keep Helen’s memory alive through her rare book fund. «

* deceased
Mary is a legend among the Syracuse University family and community, “the kind of person who comes along once in a lifetime,” as University College Dean Bethaida González said of her. Not just because she was SU’s longest-standing donor, but because of her passion, spirit, and commitment to people. The Edward A. Smith and Sheridan Gilmore Smith Memorial Library Fund is one part of her legacy. «
