THE DAILY ORANGE HAS NEW HOME

Handsome Three-Story Building Is Nearing Completion

Directly across from the entrance to the Stadium stands the new building of the Orange Publishing Company which will be the home of the Daily Orange. Located on the corner of Irving avenue and Croton street, directly at the terminal of the proposed Stadium street car line, the building has a commanding position. A. L. Brockway, one of the best known Syracuse architects, was the architect in charge of the work, E. H. Sackett designing the exterior.

Mr. Kruger, the designing engineer of the Consolidated Engineering and Construction Company, in charge of the designing of the concrete and iron work of the Stadium, designed the reinforced concrete work of the new building. William E. Hamlin, the head of the Consolidated Engineering and Construction Company, in charge of the Stadium erection, has given his personal attention to the details of the Orange publishing building.

The building as it stands today is a monument to the efforts of many men, all working together for the accomplishment of one grand purpose, the establishment of a building which will serve as a permanent center for Syracuse University journalism. The financing of this building enterprise, necessitating an expenditure of nearly $15,000, has been undertaken by the Orange Publishing Co., a New York State corporation capitalized at $10,000, the great majority of the stock of which is in the hands of alumni of Syracuse University. Several students and faculty members are also interested as stockholders. William E. Hamlin, in charge of the building of the Stadium, is interested as a stockholder to a considerable extent, and is actively serving on the board of directors.

A. Stanley Copeland '94, who founded the Orange Publishing Company in December, 1893, is serving as president. Clement T. Robertson '05, former Varsity track captain and one of the founders of the Daily Orange, is vice-president.

Ralph W. Abell ex-'07, an experienced publisher and newspaper man, is publishing manager and secretary and treasurer. Abell has served in this capacity ever since the founding of the Orange Print Shop in his freshman year, periodically sacrificing much in order to carry the Daily Orange through the periods of financial stringency.

The directorate of the Orange Publishing Company is composed of the above-named officers, together with Mr. Hamlin and Henry H. Curtiss '06, former crew coxswain. This board of directors makes contracts each year with the student manager and editor-in-chief, guaranteeing them adequate compensation, and leaving to them the detail work of staff selection and the entire responsibility of their respective departments, subject only to general supervision of the graduate manager and alumni editor.

The interior work of the new building is practically finished. The concreting of the tile exterior is rapidly progressing. As soon as the electric fixtures are attached the machinery will be moved from the old shop to the new. The new cylinder press, necessitated by the enlarged paper, has not yet arrived. Meanwhile the press work is being done in a down-town office.

Announcement of the formal opening of the new building, to occur Wednesday afternoon, will appear tomorrow.

Freshman and sophomore caps a Fowler's.

DEATH OF DOCTOR GAYLORD P. CLARK

Was Dean of College of Medicine for Several Years

Dean Clark of the College of Medicine died on September 1 at his home, No. 619 East Genesee street, of acute indigestion and heart disease. Although the Dean had been troubled with poor health for a number of years, his condition became critical only a few hours before he died. The news of his death, then, came like a shock to the University and his wide acquaintance.

Doctor Clark went abroad in April, hoping to regain his health, and while in Europe was called home on June 15 on account of the death of his father, Charles P. Clark. He arrived in Syracuse on July 15. Grief over his father's death is said to have aggravated the Dean's condition, but he was seemingly in his usual state of health, for on the morning before he died he was in his office preparing for the opening of college.

DEAN GAYLORD P. CLARK

Doctor Gaylord Parsons Clark was born in Syracuse November 12, 1856. He received his bachelor's degree at Williams, and then entered the College of Medicine at Syracuse, from which he was graduated with highest honors in 1880. He opened an office on South Salina street and became an instructor in the College of Medicine, and has been constantly connected with it since. He has also been an instructor in Fine Arts and Liberal Arts. Besides his pedagogical work Doctor Clark has, from time to time, filled important offices along his professional line with the city and government. He was an active member of several well-known medical societies and was also a member of Kappa Alpha and of Phi Beta Kappa. He was the author of several books relating to his profession.

Doctor Clark was known to be an artist of unusual merit, especially in crayon, and could have made a success along that line had he devoted his attention to it.

In the past few years Syracuse has suffered by the deaths of five of its deans, those of John R. French of Liberal Arts, Leroy M. Vernon and Emory McChesney of Fine Arts and Henry D. Didama and Gaylord P. Clark of the College of Medicine.

BOOKS MOVED TO NEW LIBRARY

The past three weeks have been busy ones with the librarian, Mrs. Sibley, and her corps of assistants. The entire contents of the old library, containing fully 100,000 volumes, have during that time been moved to the new library. This has all been accomplished without the least confusion, the volumes being placed on their new stacks in readiness for any call that may come this week from faculty members and students.

The Book Exchange has moved to just at foot of the campus. Second-hand books.

FOOTBALL SQUAD AT CAZENOVIA

Early Practice Proves Beneficial--Stimson May Play

The football team returns tomorrow from Cazenovia after nine days of hard preliminary practice. The men are all in first class shape and ready for scrimmage work in their first practice on the oval tomorrow or Wednesday afternoon.

The training has consisted of a full day's work. The men take a long tramp before breakfast, practice at nine and three and walk again in the evening. A set of signals has been well worked up and a number of good plays are being run through smoothly.

The squad consists of Captain F. R. Park, F. M. Horr, R. E. Cadigan, W. C. Fisher, M. B. Banks, A. H. Stein, J. R. Van Arman, H. D. Anderson, W. P. Reynolds, J. H. Dudley, E. M. Larkin, M. C. Shimer, W. T. O'Brien, D. T. Scully, L. C. Preston, F. Burton, L. W. Van Deusen, Manager Clifford L. Haight, Coach F. J. O'Neill, Assistant Coach L. B. Wyckoff and Trainer Tom Keane.

Prospects are bright for a first class team, as almost all of last year's men are back and in better condition than ever. Waugh will report this week and Champlin is also expected soon. Material for the end positions is especially needed and a call for candidates will soon be issued.

It is possible that James P. Stimson, last year's captain, may be in the game again this year. It is rumored that he has offered to come out later in the season if the coaches feel that he is needed. When interviewed Stimson refused to deny or confirm the report. He has always been a plucky and consistent player and has in previous years made many sacrifices for the team.

MRS. RUSSELL SAGE GIVES $100,000

Buys Yates Castle Property for the University

One of the pleasant surprises of the summer for Syracusans was the announcement that Mrs. Russell Sage had given $100,000 for the purchase of the Yates Castle property and the establishment of the Teachers College. The Chancellor's statement in regard to the purpose of the gift is as follows:

First, in repayment to the University for the amount expended for the purchase of the Castle property with interest to date, so that Mrs. Sage may be in the position of giving this property to the University without any expense to it.

Second, to make such expenditures for improvements, repairs, etc., on property as required.

Third, any balance remaining to be used for improvements hereafter upon property or for a principal sum, the income of which can be used for the maintenance of the property.

Mrs. Sage's interest in the property lies in the fact that years ago she lived in the present college building, which was then Longstreet's Castle. As far as compatible with the general plan of improvement of the University, the Castle and grounds will be kept in their present condition, as this was the wish of Mrs. Sage.

The gift will prove a great aid to the speedy enlargement and improvement of the Teachers' College, which has made rapid strides in the first year of its existence.

100 cards from your own plate, $2.50.

In the expansion of Syracuse, the "vale of Onondaga" has apparently reached beyond the "western sky" till it has met the western wave of the Pacific.

Charles Park, Architect '04, sails for Panama Wednesday to renew his work in the office of the master builder of the new canal at Culebra, Canal Zone. Malcolm MacAdam '04 is also engaged in work on this section of the canal.

Grow S. Brown '05, who entered upon the missionary work in Southern China, has not yet fully recovered from the attack of typhoid fever which he suffered from last spring. It is very likely that Brown may have to return to America to regain his health. Roscoe Hersey '06 and his wife, Grace Baird Hersey '04, are located at Tien Tsin, Northern China. They are reported as well and enjoying their work, which is being rewarded with a large measure of success.
